Be An Advocate For Your Child's Education!

- To advocate is to be a proponent. Being interested, involved and inquisitive when your child enters school is an example of advocacy. Advocacy builds stronger schools.
  - Communicate with everyone involved in your child's education, including your child.
  - Become aware of the issues your child faces every day in the classroom
  - Ask your child. Find out what your child likes about school, and how your child feels about a typical day at school.
  - Talk to your child's teacher. A teacher may have insights you do not have about your child. Share your insights too!
  - Be positive. If you suspect there is a problem, ask for the teacher's input. Finding answers may take time.
  - Is your child struggling? Research. Speak with your child's doctor, browse book stores, libraries, and the internet for valid information, i.e., California PTA www.capta.org, National PTA www.pta.org, and California Department of Education www.cde.ca.gov.
- Speak with other parents; their children might be having similar experiences. Attend parent education evenings.
